Elk Point's new ambulance is now in service

A new ambulance, equipped with the latest state-of-the-art equipment, is now ready to serve Elk Point and district's emergency requirements, thanks to a partnership between two local governments and

Local ambulance service operator Fred Lambright took delivery of the new ambulance last week. Lambright has been operating the ambulance service since February 1, 1984 and says that without the support of the Town, the County, the Health Centre and its medical staff and doctors, the Toronto Dominion Bank and his own staff and family, "we wouldn't be here today. We have now upgraded to state of the art. This is the best unit on the market, and it took me almost fifteen years to get it. The day I started, I said I'd own a new ambulance some day. If you persevere and believe in yourself enough, you'll get what you want."

Mayor Ed Buck, who chairs the Ambulance Authority, is "quite happy to see a new ambulance." Buck said that assistance in acquiring a new ambulance is part of the ambulance agreement between the Town, County and Lambright, and now that "Fred is able to upgrade his equipment, it was in our game plan to assist him."

County reeve Ray Danyluk said there is good cooperation between the private and public sectors, "and without it, this wouldn't have happened. It's always best to have state of the art equipment, it gives us some security."

Oct. 5 to 11 is National Family Week

Celebrate the contribution of family to our lives

By Deanna Easthope
FCSS Director

The week of October 5 - 11, 1998 has been designated as National Family Week by Family Services Canada. National Family Week provides an occasion to consider the comfort, the fun, the nurturing we've given and received as family members. In preparation for Thanksgiving, a traditional time in Canada to celebrate with family, we can put aside some time to share with a parent, a child or a relative.

As we strive to find ways to develop and support healthy families and relationships, let's involve all members of our families and communities to make our lives more family-friendly -- at our workplaces, at our schools, in our neighborhoods.

This National Family Week, and throughout the year, let's focus on the positive -- celebrate our family's strengths, achievements and potential.

Yes, in today's world it seems like the family has taken a lot of "family bashing," or "put family time on the back burner" while Mom and Dad, or a single parent, take most of their time to earn a living. Then too, sometimes, there are so many activities our children become involved in -- "because they need these opportunities," that family time together is hard to find. Then... sometimes in the workplace -- parents work long shifts, and/or they may work on weekend days when the children are home. No, it is not like it used to be when the work week for most was Monday to Friday from 8 to 5. And Sundays were special family days because most people had that day off so it was a good opportunity for families to do things together.

We really have paid a price to be "in the '90s". I know we can't go back to "the way it used to be." But "the family" is the basic foundation of all of us. It just seems we need to take the time to "make the effort" to have "family time."

The influence of the home is a powerful force in our world; and gratefully, its influence is generally for good. That good is tangible indeed; and, while the efforts of caring parents may go unheralded at times, without them the world would be so much worse.

If we don't take time to recognize all that our families have done for us-- if we forget their gifts in the same way that we sometimes take for granted the very air we breathe -- we may also forget to share our love and gratitude except when some occasion calls for an obligatory expression.

Whether separated by miles or some other situation, we should frequently close the gap and let our families know often of our love -- either in our activities with them or the way we live our lives.

■ Letter to the Editor

What a sad day!

Dear Editor:

As the news came to us of the fire and destruction done to the Stoney Lake Campground, at the old site, one wonders what is becoming of our society.

When one will destroy their own property, I must say, "What a sad day." Who did this horrific act may say, "That was not our property." Yes, it was. The campsite is government owned and maintained. Every one of us as taxpayers are part of the government, so this is our property.

Whoever is responsible for this act, must never have gone to the Stoney Lake campsite and just sat and watched the beaver in the lake at work, or listened to the loons call, the coyote howl or just watch ripples on the water and the rustling of the leaves on the many beautiful trees around the lake area.

Ms Drobot had done a wonderful clean-up job to this campsite and certainly must be heartbroken over what has happened.

Our only wish is that they find whoever did this and make them clean, rebuild and replace the firewood at their time and cost.

This campsite holds many memories from bygone years, to the people who were raised in this area. As we speak to people from this area about this happening, they all have heavy hearts over this tragedy.

Since we now have a county RCMP, perhaps the area can be patrolled in the evenings and nights. This may help to find the people responsible for this sad act and help keep it from happening to another campsite.

Making sense of food labels

By Carmen Skrypichayko
Registered Dietician

Making nutritious food choices can be as simple as reading the food label. However, the claims made on food labels can be confusing and misleading. Here are a few tips to help you know what to look for.

The ingredient list can tell you a lot about a food product. Ingredients are listed in the order of the amount used. For example, if glucose (sugar) is the first ingredient listed, there is more sugar in the product than anything else. Also, people with allergies need to examine ingredients closely and know all chemical names under which the food they are allergic to may be listed.

Check the serving size. Some products may seem like they are low in fat and calories but when you look at the serving size, it is very small. Think about how many crackers or cookies you consider a serving and do a comparison.

Caution about fat claims. Look for foods that are labeled "low in fat." This claim is clearly defined and these products will contain less than 3 grams of fat per serving. When foods are labeled as "lite" you need to read the label to ensure they low in calories and fat. The "light" can refer to the color, taste, texture or calorie content. Olive oil is often labeled as light because of its light color, however it is still high in fat.

Don't pay too much attention to labels that read "cholesterol free" or "no cholesterol." Cholesterol is found only in foods of animal origin and foods low in cholesterol may be high in fat. Best example here is the french fry. Because they are deep-fried in vegetable oil, they are cholesterol free, but are still very high in fat. Remember, keeping our total fat intake low is important to control our blood cholesterol levels and waistline, not our intake of dietary cholesterol.

Hopefully these tips will help clear up the confusion in the grocery store and make choosing a healthy diet easier.

Reporter hooked on veggies!

Exploring the world of vegetarianism

By Juanita Daniels
Heinsburg School Reporter

Seven months. That is how long I have been a vegetarian. It has been a long seven months, full of new learning experiences and words that had never before entered my vocabulary. I remember the first time I walked into the supermarket and asked for tofu wieners, by the look on the face of the stock boy I think he wanted to ask what planet I was from. I have learned to accept the looks of confusion and I am enjoying my new meatless lifestyle.

Vegetarianism is now very common place, in households all over North America. Many families are embracing meatless diets, and for good reasons too. Studies have proven that a vegetarian diet lowers cholesterol, improves your immune system and lessens your chances of heart problems. Vegetarians also have a 39 per cent lower risk of getting cancer. These are only a few of the amazing effects vegetarianism can have on an individual.

One of the best highlights of a vegetarian diet is the quick, easy meals. For any mother or teenager on the move, this works very well. Stir-fry a few veggies, a little rice and sprouts and voila! a meal. I am aware now of the thoughts running through every non-vegetarian's head. Yes, these meals are tasty, you would be amazed at what a little square of tofu could become.

Some good magazines and reference books are, "Vegetarian Times", (which has been a very helpful magazine) and Mark Warren Reinhardt's "The perfectly contented meat-eaters guide to Vegetarianism".

Of course before starting any new diet, please talk with your doctor or dietician. They will be able to help you with vitamins and setting up meal plans.

So take the plunge. Ignore the stares and questions that start with "you're a what ...?" Then you can smile at the fact that you will look and feel younger, and live longer. Vegetarianism will give you a whole new outlook on life and health. Becoming a vegetarian is something you will never regret, I can vouch for that.

Busiest year ever for Elk Point's squad of dedicated firefighting volunteers

Calls in 1998 included two million-dollar fires

It's been the busiest year ever for Elk Point's hard-working Volunteer Fire Department, whose log books for 1998 include two million-dollar fires, which occurred within weeks of one another at the Canadian Salt Plant and at a local farm where a huge hog operation was destroyed.

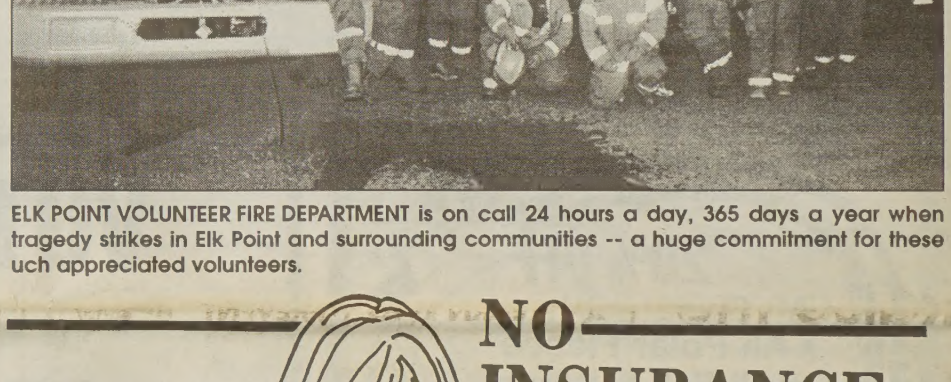
The department has answered 60 calls since January 1 of this year, and only three of these were rescue calls. The remainder included 19 in-town calls, of which two were house fires and the majority false alarms.

County calls accounted for the other two thirds of the workload, and Fire Chief Ken Palamarek attributes this in a large part to the very dry summer. The firefighters answered scores of calls to grass, bush, bale and machinery fires during the hot, dry spring and summer months.

One major out-of-town fire consumed the old community hall at Fishing Lake.

The Elk Point Volunteer Fire Department also attends weekly practice sessions every Monday evening where they brush up on firefighting and rescue techniques.

There are only fourteen members in the department at present. The oil patch slowdown and subsequent moves and transfers have resulted in several dedicated members of the department relocating to other areas. Palamarek says new members are always welcome to join the department, and at the present time would be very welcome additions to the squad of firefighting volunteers.



ELK POINT VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPARTMENT is on call 24 hours a day, 365 days a year when tragedy strikes in Elk Point and surrounding communities -- a huge commitment for these uch appreciated volunteers.

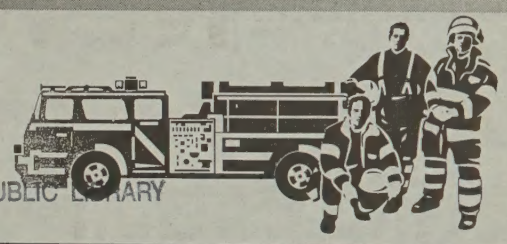
Fire Drills: The Great Escape

Be prepared for emergencies

ELK POINT PUBLIC LIBRARY



We are on "autopilot" when doing most of our daily activities - walking, dressing, routine cooking, signing our names...

We are so skilled at these activities that we don't engage in much thinking when they are done. With practice, they have become habitual, automatic and a part of our daily life.

Facing a fire emergency and responding to it properly is not something we generally do on a daily basis. Thanks to fire prevention efforts and improved fire protection features in our buildings, most of us will probably not face a life threatening fire.

Yet, the chance is always there that any one of us could be facing a deadly fire in our homes, our workplace or in a restaurant, hotel or other building. This is why we must be prepared.

To do so, we must give up the attitude, "it won't happen to me." This attitude didn't hold true in just over 1,500 Alberta homes last year, where fire killed 20 people.

Our homes are filled with many combustible items such as furniture, carpets, books, clothing. A fire can spread rapidly to the entire building within a few minutes.

Smoke, which contains toxic gases such as carbon monoxide and hydrogen cyanide, can incapacitate us or kill us within minutes. Trying to gather valuables or checking out the fire will waste precious seconds, and trap you in an inferno, during a fast spreading fire.

"Being prepared" is the best solution to the possibility of a deadly fire. Install at least one smoke alarm on every level of your home. Ensure they are in working order by testing them monthly and replacing batteries once a year.

Smoke alarms provide early warning of fire and smoke danger to allow safe escape. Participate with your family in the North America wide Fire Drill on October 7 during this year's Fire Prevention Week.

Learn the basics of planning and practising your fire escape. What you learn and practice regularly will enable you to respond to a fire automatically, and it may some day save your life and the lives of your loved ones.

Raise the alarm

Practise your escape:

1. Pretend there's smoke in the room, slide out of bed and crawl to the door on your hands and knees. Keep low; in a real fire, that's where the air will be fresher, cooler and easier to see through.
2. Check the door with your hand. In a real fire, if the door's hot, use an alternative route.
3. Make sure everyone knows how to open the windows in your home. A window will be your best alternate route.
4. If you are trapped, protect yourself until help arrives. Close the doors between you and the smoke.
5. Close all doors behind you as you leave the house. A door can hold back toxic smoke and flames in an emergency and could give you a few life saving seconds to escape.
6. Don't go back. Decide on a meeting place outside so everyone can be accounted for. Designate one person to find a phone away from the home, and call the fire department.

If you've planned your escape, you'll know what to do!

"Our immediate challenge is to make sure that young people who want to continue to learn have access to education"

Today's students are tomorrow's leaders. But to guarantee a bright future, they need greater access to education. They also need the job search skills that will help them reach their goals. To make sure that young people have what they need to succeed, the following programs and services are available.

More Affordable Financing for Post-Secondary Education

Helping Students Cope With Rising Costs:

- new Canada Study Grant for students with dependants
- for part-time students, a new deduction for child care expenses and the ability to claim the education tax credit
- Canada Millennium Scholarships to more than 100,000 students a year, over 10 years, beginning in 2000

Helping Individuals Repay Student Loans:

- new tax credit for interest paid on student loans
- improvements to the interest relief plan to help students repay their loans, and extension of interest relief over a longer period of time
- possible reduction in Canada Student Loan principal for those in serious financial difficulty

The Youth Information Initiative

This service provides young people with job market information so they can make decisions about their education and careers. Information is available through a Web site, a toll-free information line, local information exhibits, Youth Link, a directory of Government of Canada programs for youths, and seminars and conferences held in communities throughout Canada.

SchoolNet

Canada's SchoolNet helps connect the country's 16,500 schools, 3,400 public libraries, and 460 First Nations schools to the information highway. It links over 1,000 national and international educational services and resources. This enables educators and learners to develop the skills needed in the global economy.

More air for seniors centre

Community Facility Enhancement Grant presented

The Pioneer Circle Seniors Recreation Centre is upgrading their air conditioning to include the balance of the centre, thanks to a $19,578 grant from the Alberta Government's Community Facility Enhancement Program.

MLA Paul Langevin attended last week's Pioneer Circle general meeting to present the cheque, and told the seniors the upgrading program for the air conditioning "was very well needed. This building is used not only for the seniors, but available to the whole community. This is very good, and shows cooperation and community spirit."

Margaret Modin, Pioneer Circle president, said that when the CFEP grant application was made, "we didn't have our bids in. Our original application was for $17,500. We're very appreciative that the government went the extra mile to help us cover the additional cost of the project."

Another successful ESC project

Students at the Elk Point Elementary School are enjoying the new playground equipment on the south side of the school this week. A 12-ft. climbing wall and three tiered turning bars were installed last week. The project was an initiative of the Elk Point and District Education Support Council. Funding for the equipment was received through the Community Lottery Board this past summer. The generosity of local business provided equipment and supplies to prepare the playground site and parent volunteers donated their time to assemble and install the equipment. Still to come are four tether balls and a funnel ball, which should be ready for play by the middle of October. Special thanks go out to Shamrock Valley Enterprises and the County of St. Paul No. 19 for their very generous donations to this project.

what's NEWS at the LIBRARY?

A very busy spider comes to our Storytime

Check out some of our new titles for adults and young folk alike

By Jennifer Caudron
Temporary Librarian

I am still enjoying working at the library in Karina's absence. This past week the story time crowd was smaller and everyone seemed to have a good time listening to a variety of the library's colorful stories. The kids even were able to feel the texture of a busy spider, as shown in the story, The Very Busy Spider by Eric Carle. This Friday we will be doing some fun Thanksgiving activities, and hope to see a record-breaking attendance.

Also, a friendly reminder that video loans are three days, magazines one week, and books two weeks. Thank you very much for keeping circulation up to date.

Keep an eye out for some of these titles on your next visit to the library:

Adult fiction:

Courting Saskatchewan by David Carpenter is a celebration of winter fests, summer loves and rising brookies. By turns humorous, lighthearted and profound, this intensely personal book is suffused with Carpenter's own keen sense of humor and his love of Saskatchewan.

John Ross accepts the legacy passed on eight centuries from the Welsh hero Owain Clyndwr. Now he must combat the demonic evil of the Void to prevent a hellish future for Earth. But the faith he once had in the goodness of the Word, the source of his magical powers, has gone. It is up to young Nest Freemark to restore his faith to save both their lives in A Knight of the Word by Terry Brooks.

Adult non-fiction:

In Sleeping Through the Night, child psychologist Jodi Mindell provides an easy-to-read, practical book offering a proven method to teach your baby or toddler to fall asleep on his/her own and stay asleep until morning.

Juvenile non-fiction:

With over 150 color maps, the Complete Atlas of the World is full of information describing the world's geography, its people, and their impact on the environment. Great for school projects.

Books on tape:

Once again, Kinsey Millhone, the feisty and resourceful P.I., has taken on a case with a deadly twist in 'D' is for Deadbeat by Sue Grafton. A deadbeat she has been tracking turns out to be just plain dead, and she must now find the killer.

Picture books:

Help! Help! Who can help? Five frogs, seven snails and many others try help in One Duck Stuck by Phyllis Root. Counting is fun with pictures by Jane Chapman.
